"Caring for your Children's Digital Well-Being"

In today's tech-savvy world, it's important for parents to actively guide their children towards meaningful screen experiences. Quality screen time is not just about limits; it is about making the most of the moments your children spend on digital devices. Here is a way to cultivate a positive digital environment: Explore educational apps and websites recommended for your child's age, interests, and school curriculum. These platforms can turn screen time into valuable learning opportunities, all the while honing their tech skills.

Books for Africa

I am pleased to announce that Keheley Elementary will conduct a book drive to help Emily Jemison, an Ambassador Girl Scout earn her Gold Award. The Girl Scout Gold Award is the highest award a Girl Scout can earn. Emily is collecting gently used books to donate to Books for Africa. The books will be sent to libraries and schools in 27 African countries. The book drive will start on October 17th and run through December 8th. You can drop your books off in the bin located in the atrium at Keheley.
