Teasley's Learning Principles

| | | | _ 📥 |
|---------------------------------------|---|--|--|
| CURRICULUM | INSTRUCTION | ASSESSMENT | ENVIRONMENT |
| What we teach. | How we teach the curriculum. | How we assess learning. | How each person treats every |
| | | | other person. |
| Curriculum should be: | Instruction should be: | Assessment should be: | The school environment |
| | | | should: |
| Teasley's curriculum is a | Teasley's instruction should be student | Teasley's assessments are | The environment at Teasley is |
| collaboratively developed, flexible | centered where the teacher is the | authentically designed to identify | inclusive and made up of a diverse |
| document outlining concepts and | facilitator and students are taking | students' strengths and areas of | community of learners who |
| standards that students should know | ownership of their learning. Students | growth and in turn guide daily | empathize with, respect, and care for |
| and be able to do. It is | have the opportunity to learn both | instruction. These ongoing | one another. We accept and |
| developmentally appropriate and | individually and together through | assessments give students the | embrace each other's differences as |
| vertically aligned between grade | collaborative conversations and real- | opportunity to explain their thinking | we celebrate what all learners brings |
| levels. Our curriculum is engaging | world experiences while being | and demonstrate their knowledge so | to the table. We work towards |
| and designed for students to make | supported through a knowledgeable | teachers can support and extend | understanding each other better as |
| meaning of their learning through | teacher. Students are learning through | learning. As a result, instruction is | we grow more thoughtful about the |
| inquiry. It is relevant, timely and | inquiry and making discoveries while | implemented that meets individual | different perspectives that make up |
| integrated with a global perspective. | they are engaged in hands on learning | students where they are and guides | our community and the world. |
| It is rigorous and differentiated to | experiences and problem-based | them to mastery. Feedback is | Teachers and students works |
| challenge all learners. | activities. Instruction should be | provided in an ongoing manner with | towards peaceful conflict resolution |
| | differentiated in flexible small groups | the intent to inform students on how | in a nurturing environment where |
| | that are formed through data driven | they can make continual progress | there is no fear of judgement. The |
| | analysis and that challenge a student's | towards meeting learning targets. | environment is structured yet flexible |
| | potential. Students should feel like | Performance-based assessments | while embracing opportunities for |
| | their ideas matter and be respected as | incorporate a variety of different | movement. Classrooms are |
| | they enthusiastically grasp concepts | learning styles and allow for student- | collaborative and promote student |
| | and make meaning of the world | choice and meaningful, reflective | engagement and ownership through |
| | around them. Students should be | conversations between teachers and | meaningful and open |
| | provided learning resources that | students. Through a truly balanced | communication. Students are willing |
| | support their learning experiences | assessment program, we are | to take risks and demonstrate that |
| | including a structured environment, | developing a growth mind-set in our | true learning happens through trial |
| | manipulatives, and technology. | students which increases motivation | and error. |
| | | and deepens learning. As a result, | |
| | | students are invested in | |
| | | demonstrating their knowledge and | |
| | | monitoring their own progress. | |