

Gifted Eligibility Process: Frequently Asked Questions

What are the state requirements for gifted eligibility in the State of Georgia?

A video presentation of the Cobb County Gifted Eligibility Process and Service Models is available on the Cobb County School District website at <http://academics.cobbk12.org/index.php/ad/tl/apl/advanced-learning/#1496264168814-0821e1e9-6a4f>.

The specific criteria is outlined on the Cobb County School District website at <http://academics.cobbk12.org/index.php/ad/tl/apl/advanced-learning/#1500483482231-18ac6ce3-cb8e>.

Who is screened for gifted eligibility?

Automatic referral: All Cobb students are screened on a consistent basis (currently K, 1st, 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 8th grades) through district-wide assessment. Based on these scores, some children may be eligible for further assessment.

Reported referral: Any person with knowledge of a student's abilities may refer him/her at any time. Once a referral has been made, the LEC (Local Eligibility Committee) will review the available data and determine whether further assessment is appropriate. The CEC (Central Eligibility Committee) reviews all reported referrals submitted for approval by an LEC. Please note, a referral does not necessarily equate to evaluation.

How does the local eligibility committee decide whether further evaluation is warranted?

The local eligibility committee reviews all available data to determine whether a child is achieving well above grade level. This data usually includes district-wide assessments, including, but not limited to, the Math Inventory (MI), Reading Inventory (RI), Developmental Reading Inventory, state-wide academic testing (such as the Milestones), GLOSS, and classroom performance.

If my child was in a gifted program in another school system, will he/she be the gifted program in Cobb County?

There is in-state reciprocity among public school systems within the state of Georgia. A child currently receiving gifted services in a Georgia public school system who registers in Cobb County will be served as soon as eligibility can be verified in writing. Georgia does NOT have reciprocity with other states' gifted programs. These students may be considered for eligibility through the reported referral process.

If my child receives nonstandard accommodations during the testing process, can those scores be used for gifted eligibility?

Scores obtained with non-standard accommodations are not utilized for gifted eligibility. They can, however, be considered as a basis for a reported referral in which all available data is reviewed to determine if further assessment for gifted eligibility is warranted.

Will Milestones testing be used for gifted eligibility? Milestones data can be considered during the reported referral process as a screener only. It cannot be used to establish eligibility according to the guidelines provided by the Georgia Department of Education.

Can a private psychological report be used for eligibility?

For the reported referral process, private data may be considered as a part of the screening process. This review will only occur during a regularly scheduled gifted eligibility assessment window.

Who scores my child's tests for gifted eligibility?

Assessments given outside of system-wide testing will be scored by certified evaluators who have been trained on scoring and norming procedures. There is no formal score report (such as the Individual Performance Profile) generated in this process. You will receive the composite and available component scores from all assessment in an eligibility document (GF4 or GF5) when the process is complete.

What is a motivation portfolio?

A motivation portfolio is a follow-up evaluation measure in motivation in grades 1-5. It consists of several documents that reflect a child's motivation for learning in academic areas. Input from the student, the classroom teacher, and the parent is included. A committee of trained evaluators from outside the student's local school evaluates each portfolio. Student portfolios are evaluated on six motivational characteristics: enthusiasm, exceptionalism, persistence, independence, consistency, and productivity.

My child's score report shows qualifying scores in three areas, but he/she did not qualify. Why is this?

Rating scales are utilized to screen for eligibility in the categories of creativity and motivation. Per the state rule, a rating scale (GES/GRS) may also be used to establish eligibility but in only one category, either creativity or motivation. When existing data warrants a follow up measure, further assessment may be provided in some categories within one calendar year.

What do I do if my child does not qualify, but I believe he/she needs services?

All children are screened on a consistent basis (currently K, 1st, 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 8th grades) through district-wide assessment. If you think your child may have been overlooked, you may refer your child for further consideration using a GF1 (request this form from local school gifted lead). Once a referral has been made, the LEC (Local Eligibility Committee) will review the available data and determine whether further testing is appropriate. The CEC (Central Eligibility Committee) reviews all reported referrals submitted for approval by an LEC. Please note, a referral does not necessarily equate to evaluation.
