supporting language access for ELL and SWD student groups.

- CCC teams determine “must-have” vocabulary based on the expanded frameworks posted in CTLS for each unit.
- Interactive word walls established in each ELA/Reading class. An additional mini-PD session was conducted at the start of CCCs in October in order explore more practical methods for ensuring our word walls are interactive for students. A list of easily implementable strategies was provided as a take-away.
- Explicit vocabulary instruction embedded within weekly lesson plans (prioritizing word parts, student-friendly definitions, and visuals).
- Student led activities incorporated such as 360 Words, Modified Frayer Models, Words in Context, Found Examples- Student work displayed in conjunction with classroom word walls.

7. What does the word proportion mean in math?

- A number that never changes
- A large amount of something
- A tool used to measure weight
- A way to compare two ratios that are equal

6-8th grade math teachers will implement math reasoning and number sense talks weekly as measured by CCC lesson plans, teacher ppts, and CTLS assessments.

Performance Target: By May 2026 50% of students will score a near target or higher on Numerical Reasoning domain based on DRC Beacon data.

Implementation (include person responsible):

100% of math teachers will implement math reasoning and number sense talks weekly as measured by CCC lesson plans, teacher ppts, and CTLS assessments.

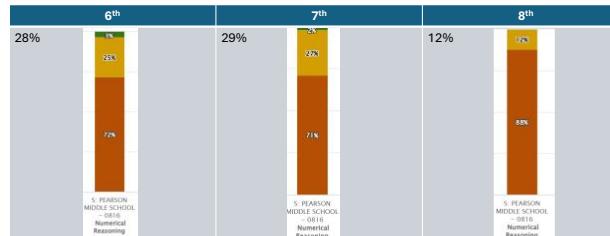

Academic coach is responsible for ensuring number talks are documented and implemented during instruction time.

Artifacts: CCC minutes and teacher ppts will be reviewed for ensuring math talks are happening weekly.
